NAME

Description

The major markets experienced a pullback after reaching new all-time highs in a number of the indices early in the week.

Earnings began to become the dominate factor last week as the earnings season ramps up. Only Consumer Staples and Materials managed to close in the green, while Real Estate, Energy, and Communication Services led the pack down.

The Communication Services sector was pulled down significantly due to disappointment in the earnings report for Netflix which fell over 10% in one day and experienced a loss every day last week.

Meanwhile, the losses in Energy were in large part due to the pullback in both Crude Oil and Natural Gas prices. Oil prices have been somewhat volatile lately as there have been several events involving Iran and Western countries' tankers. Over the weekend, a second British oil tanker was seized in the Strait of Hormuz as tensions with Iran continues to escalate.
